PROPOSED DEMONSTRATION AND DISSOLUTION OF THE LEAGUE.

A MEETING of the New South W: les Council and of the Executive Board of the Australasian League is called this day, by public advertisement, for the purpose of considering " when, how, and with what public demonstration throughout the colonies of Australasia, the PRESIDENT, pursuant to the con stitution, shall proclaim the Australasian League to be dissolved." We see two objections to this notification. In the first place, it is by far too abrupt. It is dated on the 13th, advertised on the 14th, and the meeting is to be held on the 15th. Considering the great importance of the proposition to be discussed, there ought to have been an interval of at least fourteen days between the issuing of the summons and the day of meeting; instead of which here is an interval of only a single day. Why, a notice such as this is insufficient for any of the objects for which notices are given at all. It is insufficient as a means of bringing the members together : it is insufficient as a acted. "The Local Branch Council-ors," says the advertisement, "are earnestly requested to attend;" and the request is conveyed in a way the least calculated to secure compliance. Not only is it desirable that there should be a full attendance; but it is especially desirable that the councillors should have ample time for turning over the subject in their own minds, and for learning something of the opinions entertained respecting it by their constituents. We know not that we ever witnessed a more unbusiness.

In the next place, even had due notice been given, the meeting would still be premature. The time has not come either for the proposed demonstration, or for the proposed dissolution. The demonstration should not precede the consum-mation of victory; the League should not be dissolved until there remains not a single doubt that its work has been finished. No Order in Council has yet declared, no act of parliament has yet sanctioned, the discontinuance of transportation to any part of the Ausralian colonies. All we have Ministerial promise; but, before we ver tour joy in a public demonstration, let us see the promise fulfilled,— fulfilled to the letter,—fulfilled in a way so decisive and complete as to leave no room for mistakes, no possibility of re-traction. Whether it can be fulfilled in virtue of the royal prerogative alone we are not lawyers enough to determine From the reference to Parliament contained in HER MAJESTY's Speech, and repeated in the Ministerial despatches, ve should infer, however, that even if the concurrence of Lords and Commons in the shape of a legislative enactment be not indispensable, an expression of their consent in some other form should be deemed an essential preliminary to a meas re of so much national importance as the one to which the promise relates. l et us wait until the decision of Parliament b

By an odd coincidence, the very day upon which the advertisement made its appearance in our columns, we gave an article from the Times which confirms our view of the prematurity of the step. That article shows plainly enough that the Transportation Question is not yet tet-tled, for it opens with the query, "What shall we do with our convicts?" It shows. moreover, that not even the question fof non-transportation to Australia has yet assumed a form that would justify the proposed demonstration of colonial joy, still less the proposed dissolution of the league. "The ex-Colonial Secretary," says the Times "leans towards Moreton Bay, where we are told that the settlers would be glad to get convict labour," And of the various intentions and suggestions thrown out, the Times pronounces this to be " the best, " the only reason assigned for demurring to its adoption being altogether irrespective either of Australian interests or of Australian wishes, those of Moreton Bay alone excepted, with which t is assumed that transportation would be perfectly compatible. "Sir John Pakington," the Times reiterates, "last night repeated the suggestion that they might be sent to Moreton Bay, where the ttlers are said to wish for convicts." We know they do, at least but too large a proportion of the wealthy and influential f their number. They have placed this wish on record, and they have done so more than once or twice. The documents are in the archives of Downing-street, and may at any moment be coming in confirmation of Sir John PAKINGTON's assertion, and in support of his project for erecting Moreton Bay into a second Van Diemen's Land. Nor is Sir John Parington the only senator by whom, nor the House of Commons the only place in which, this reluctance to perfect our exemption from convictism has been expressed. In the House of Lords, and by peers of great weight, the same sentiment has been avowed, and would no doubt be avowed again, and with increased solemnity and

And, in the face of all this, we are to make a demonstration, and the League is to be dissolved! Why this unseemly effect, when the question came formally before their lordships' House.

tion of events? Why this gratuitous abrogation of powers which have, indeed, accomplished much, but which, for ought that is known or can be foreseen, it may be necessary again to evok for the complete fulfilment of the pur pose for which they were originally called into action? What laughing-stocks should we be to the world, if, after making our demonstration, and breaking up the League, Moreton Bay "separation" should be granted, and granted on the terms granted on the terms and conditions set forth in Mereton Bay's pre-convict We do hope that the meeting of to-day if with so short a notice a meeting can be mustered-will be of opinion that it has been prematurely convened, and will adstanding that the questions of demonstration and dissolution shall be deferred until the previous question of Australian deliverance shall have been fully and irrevocably settled in the affirmative. We do not see what other decisions the Councillors can to-day arrive at, consistently with the plain facts of the case, consistently with the inter ests of the League, consistently with the duty which the Council owes to its constituents, consistently with the dictates of

COUNCIL PAPERS.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY laid upon The COLONIAL SECRETARY laid upon the table the following papers:—I. Return to an address in reference to the appointment and emoluments of the Steam Navigation Board, adopted on motion of Mr. Campbell, on the 31st ultimo. 2. Report from Mr. Commissioner Mackay, on the Yalwal Creek Gold Field. 3. Copy of the Gold Regulations, ordered to be referred to the select committee on the Gold Fields' Management Bill. Ordered to be printed. to be printed.
SIR THOMAS MITCHELL.

Mr. MARIIN, seeing the Colonial Secre-tary in his place, begged to ask him a question. It was generally understood, he believed, that although the Council had voted last year that the Surveyor-General, Sir Thomas the Surveyor-General, Sir Thomas Mitchell should be granted a twelvemonth's leave of absence, during which his full salary was to be paid, some authority at home had set the resolution of the House at open defiance, and had not only paid but half that officer's salary, but had issued peremptory orders to him to return to the colony the m ment his term of leave had expire! He wished to know if the Government had any information upoon the subject.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY : In con-The COLONIAL SECRETARY: In consequence of the resolution passed by the Council last year, with reference to Sir Thomas Mitchell, a communication had been made to the Right Hon, the Secretary of State, and a remittance was made to the Colonial Agent General, to be drawn by the Surveyor General, under the authority of the Secretary of State. But by a despatch recently received it appeared that the Secretary of State disapproved of the leave granted on the ground that Sir Thomas Mitchell had already enjoyed leave on other occasions much longer than was usually granted to officers in colonial service; and the full salary was also objected to as contrary to precedent and to the rules of the Colonial Office; and instructions had been given to him to return immediately on the expiration of his to return immediately on the expiration of his

The COLONIAL SECRETARY said he had for some length of time been in correspondence with the Survey Department on the subject of the Braidwood Road; and he had just understood that a report from Mr. Mann, sppointed to survey the line of road, had been received, staing that his survey was completed. As soon as he was in possession of its contents, he would communicate them to the Mouse.

POSTPONEMENTS.

Mr. CAMPBELL, in the absence of Mr.
Cowper, postponed two motions standing in his name, until after the remaining business.

THE CONSTITUTION DESPATCHES.

Mr. WENTWORTH: The motion of the on, and learned member for Cumberland and been referred to a select committee of the House, he, as chairman of that committee, had House, he, as chairman of that committee, had brought up its Report; and as it seemed to have been the general opinion of the House that the conciliatory tone of those despatches should be acknowledged, he did not apprehend any objection would be made to the atoption of the Report. There was, however, one point to which he must call the attention of the House. The resolution contained a deviation from the ordinary practice, insamuch as it was recom-The resolution contained a deviation from the ordinary practice, inasmuch as it was recommended that they should be conveyed to the Secretary of State by the Speaker, instead of being forwarded to the Governor-General for transmission. The committee considered that as the Speaker was the constitutional organ of the House, it was right that he should personally address the Secretary of State. He begged to move: That the resolutions agreed to and reported by the S. Ject Committee on the Constitution Despatches be now adopted by this Council.

stitution Despatches be now adopted by this Council.

Mr. MORRIS seconded the motion.

Mr. MARTIN did not intend to oppose the adopt on of the resolutions, particularly so far as they related to the part taken by the Governor-General. No mun was more sensible than himself that His Excellency had done all in his power to promote the wishes of the Council. But he could not allow this conportunity to pass with mote the wisness or the Council. But he could not allow this opportunity to pass without calling the attention of the House to the answer he had just now received from the hon. answer he had just now received from the hon, the Colonial Secretary, in reply to the question he put to him with reference to Sir Thomas Mitchell. In a matter purely local, affecting one of their own officials at home, in all probability not the Duke of Newcastle, nor Sir John Pakington, but some subordinate, had taken upon himself to set at nought a resolution of that House, on the ground that it was contrary to the rules of the Colonial Office. Why, what had this House to do with the rules of the Colonial Office? What business had the Colonial Office to interfere in a matter like this, in which they were no way con had the Colonial Office to interfere in a matter like this, in which they were no way con-cerned? After the Legislature of the colony had granted that officer leave, and voted his full salary, how did any official in the mother country presume to take such a responsibility upon himself? (Hear, hear.) When they saw such things as this, how could they be-lieve that there was any sincere desire on the part of the home Government to concede their rights until they were compelled. For his part, he had no faith in their promises, and aithough he was willing to express his thanks for the more conciliatory tone evinced in the late despatches, he did not believe the British Government would ever give them all that they required until they knew the colony had late despatches, he did not believe the British Government would ever give them all that they required until they knew the colony had the power to enforce its demands.

Mr. NICHOLS said the House was no doubt obliged to the Secretary of State for the tone of his despatches, but, after all, he had only given what they were unquestionably entitled to, and neither the home government nor the Governor-General deserved to be thanked now. These thanks come either too late, or too early. When the concessions were actually made would be time enough to expense graited, for they had too many instances of the violation of edlean promises. The truth was, the change in the tone of the minister was owing to the fact that this country had now become a very valuable appendage to the British crown, and this it was that forced their claims into consideration.

become a very valuable appendage to the British crown, and this it was that forced their elaims into consideration.

Mr. MURRAY entirely disagreed with the strong expressions of the last speakes. He questioned very much whether it would have been politic in the home government to have conceded all the rights they had been bathling for at an earlier period. As a colonist he indeed felt gratified at what had occurred, but he had some misgivinas; he doubted actremely whether, under responsible government, a sufficient enumber of qualified possessions, as unficient enumber of qualified possession of office. At all events the minister had acted in a conciliatory spirit, and he fully concurred in the hope expressed in the latter part of the deseatch, that the concessions now made would strengthen the boards of union and affection between the costony and the mother country which at present existed, and would promote the best interests of the colony and its advancement. Although the abould not propose any amendment, he could have wished that the resolution referring to the part taken by the Governor-General, had been expressed in still stronger terms.

Mr. WENTWORTH fully concurred with the hon, member who had last spoken, in reference to the second resolution, and if any the hon, member who had lest spoken, in reference to the second resolution, and if any hon, member had felt disposed to propose an addition to it, he should have been glad to make it more complete. With reference to the observations of the hon, member for the Northumberland Boroughs, he (Mr. W.) was not aware of any promise made by any Becretary of State which had been violated; and if the proceedings of the Council were searched he was certain very few instances would be found. But, if this really had been the case heretofore, he would ask whether it would not be politic on the part of the House to found some resolutions on the present despatched to consider the concessions as already made, so as to render the difficulty of retracing his steps insuperable. (Cheers.) As regarded the observations of the hon. member for the Northern Boroughs, as to the period at which responsible Government was granted, he would only say this - Whether it came two years hence or twenty years hence, there must be a difficulty always at the outset; and it was by no means a matter of course, in his opinion, that all the present holders of office must be turned out at one fell swoop. (Laughter.) It must be evident that those who were efficient would be got rid of. (Cheers.) He for one had no wish to get into any of their posts, and he believed the other representative members of the House were either too busy in the proceeding of the public works of the colony, under a Board of Public works, however, that the resolutions were not to be opposed, and he should, therefore not trouble the House further.

The motion was then agreed to.

PUBLIC WORKS.

Mr. HOLROYD, in pursuance of netice, moved the following resolutions, "That a Select Committee be appointed to enquire into, and report upon the propriety of placing the construction, management, and control of the public works of the colony, under a Board of Public Works. That such committee consist of the Colonial Secretary. Colonel Barney, Mr. Cowper, Mr. Martin, Mr. Jeffreys, Mr. Russell all, or at least so inefficiently as to be of little permanent use. Let them, for instance, consider that three years ago a thousand pounds was voted for the formation of an embankment at Parramatta; but although the work was one o paramount utility and importance, it had never been carried out. In fact it had been found that in all parts of the country that the system of entreuting the funds voted from the revenues of the colony to local bodies was a failure. Large sums of money, for great public works, were annually voted, which were never expended. On the estimates for the present year, a very large sum, in the aggregate, was placed for public works. There was £2,500 for roads. There was £2,500 for public works, There was £2,500 for public roads at £500 ayear each. He did not at all complain of any of these sums; but if the last item were to be of any use, it must be by placing these supervisors under the superintendence of a board by whom these recommendations could be consiof any use, it must be by placing these supervisors under the superintendence of a board by whom these recommendations could be considered promptly. There were also on the estimates many other items of expenditure for public works which were on the estimates for last year, but which had never been carried out. Amongst these he might mention the sum of £700 for a bridge over the Hadquarie, near Esthurst, for the erection of which,

although negotiations had been entered into, no commencement had been made. A larges um too had been voted a long time ago for the erection of a bridge over the Yass River; but though of great and urgent necessity, it had not been begun. The sums thus voted had to be handed over to the wardens, district councils, and other bodies, for expenditure; and the consequence was that there was a necessary delay in their appropriation, from the correspondence required between such bodies and the Hom. Colonial Secretary's Office. At present it was admitted on all hands, even by the Government itself, that the public works had been very ineffectually carried out, for in the opening speech of his Excellency the Governor, in reference to this subject, he found the following passage:—"Notwithstanding the considerable sums voted during the last two Sessions for the repair of the principal leading thoroughforce. under the superintendence of a board by ing the considerable sums voted during the last two Sessions for the repair of the principal leading thorough-fares, I fear that under the present system of management the object contemplated has been but imperfectly carried out. It is my intention, therefore, to place upon the Estimates for 1854 the requisite sums to provide for the appointment of competent road engineers, to advise and assist the local committees in the proper performance of the important functions devolving upon them. Until the necessary means can be provided for the establishment or railway communication on the great lines of railway communication on the great lines of ordinary roads of the colony should not seallowed to continue in their present state of disrepair, whereby the cost of transit must be greatly, and, as regards the interests of the community, most disadvantageously increased." It would appear from this, that the Government had felt aware of the difficulty of setting country could make the setting country to the setting the se the Government had felt aware of the difficulty of getting country gentlemen to discharge these duties and attend to local matters. He might allude to one local circumstance which had fallen under his own notice, although it certainly was a somewhat dirty affair. In the centre of the gaol at Bathurst were two large cesspools, in which all the filth of the prison was discharged. In every heavy rain that fell, these cesspools rendered not only the prison a nuisance and unhealthy, but infected with their efflavia the whole town. It was recommended that a barrel drain should be constructed to carry off the filth into a neighbouring creek, and a sum placed on the estimates for the purpose. In the mean time, however, the gold discovery was effected, and it was discovered on application that about four times the amount would be necessary to carry out the purpose. Application we consequently made to the Government, and as his Excellency the Government was about to proceed to Bathurst, he promised to fispect the nuisance. The result was that it was resolved that the fifth of the prison should be the nuisance. The result was that it was resolved that the fifth of the prison about de removed daily by a wight cart, and a suitable vehicle was sent to Bathurst by the Government for that purpose. Tenders were then called for, and as effer was made by a man to do the duty for the sum of £3 a week. To this tender no reply was returned for fire anoths, when an asswer accepting the tender was returned, but it was too late, the contractor sending back word that he had entirely forgotten having sent in such a tender. The nuisance had consequently gone on increasing, and when he was in Bathurst in February last the only prospect of relief from it which the inhabitants had, was that fresh tenders had been called for. He meationed this instance only to show the delay that took place in the execution of all necessary public works, and he feelieved the appointment of a Board, such as was proposed in his seacolution, and which would at once return prompt and decisive answess to contractors, would be found to be most beneficial to the internal improvement of the colony. He therefore be gred to make the motion of which he had given notice.

Mr. MURRAY seconded the motion.

The COLONIAL SEGRETARY had much cleasure in supporting this motion; but he begged to assure the honorable and learned

The COLONIAL SECRETARY had much pleasure in supporting this motion; but he begged to assure the honorable and learned gentleman that he had undertaken a task of far greater difficulty than he had bergsined for, He, however, wished him every success, and would be happy to affird him every assistance in his power. (Hear.) The establishment of a Board of Public Works would be a considerable relief to his own descriptor. allude to the charge brought against him by the honorable and learned gentlemun, of having delayed some papers relative to the ocespools at Eathurst gool. Had notice been given to him of this charge, he had no doubt, by referring to the records of his office, he could have satisfied the House, that in this, as in every other public matter, he had used all possible diligence, according to his invariable practice of making every day do its own business. In some few cases, requiring special consideration, a delay of a day or two would sometimes take place, but, with these exceptions, he might safely say he never allowed anything to get into arrear. (Hear, hear.) No doubt a number of subjects might advantageously be committed to the proposed board—particularly that of a water supply for the city, and the construction of bridges. Whether the roads could be placed under its controul was perhaps questionable; but with the assistance of local surveyors much might be done: but it was a subject of a great difficulty, because in the present fluctuating state of the labour market it was almost impossible to obtain contracts. There were other matters of difficulty, and a subject of a great difficulty, because in the present fluctuating state of the labour market it was almost impossible to obtain contracts. There were other matters of difficulty, such as the erection of watch-houses and other local works, which could not be overcome by the proposed board. Of course the members should be well paid, because it would be necessary they should be persons both of perfect integrity and of high scientific skill. It had been suggested to him, that the great pressure on the Colonial Architect might be relieved, in the case of the undertaking of public buildings, if one or other of the clerks were allewed to prepare the necessary plans, and submit them to public competition for contract, receiving a per-centage on the omount payable to the contractor, and being made responsible for their proper execution. The honorable and learned gentleman had limited his motion to public works; but perhaps it would be better if he had included public buildings.

Mr. HOLRO YD had no objection to the insertion of words with that object.

he had included public buildings.

Mr. HOLROYD had no objection to the insertion of words with that object.

Dr. DOUGLASS: Was quite delighted to find the change which had come over the spirit of the dream of the honorable Colonial Secretary in this matter. A select committee on a subject intimately connected with this subject was appointed hast session, and a great deal of evidence was taken before it, and the preponderance of that evidence was in favour of the establishment of some such Board as was now proposed. When, however, a proposition to this effect was brought up, the Colonial Secretary set his face against, and resolutely protested against new appointments of any sort. He believed, however, that the reports of select committees were rarely founded on evidence—that, in fact, honorable members themselves rarely read the evidence taken before select committees; and he would say on this matter the honorable and learned member for Sydney, who was a member of the select committee he had alluded to, and who had searcely attended any meeting of it when any evidence was offered, but who did attend to oppose the report, in which almost this very proposition was embodied, had not, he believed, even looked at the swidence taken by that committee. The form nor saked for was proposed in the committee of last Council, and it was only continued in these resolutions, which, however, he thould be happy to support.

Mr. WENTWORTH: If the hon, member for Northumberland wished to sak him whether he had read the evidence of a certain

not. (Laughter.) He had at the outset objected to sit on that committee, and had stated that he should not be able to attend to stated that he should not be able to attend to the enquiry, but as the hon, member persisted in appointing him as a member of it, it was certainly rather hard he should censure him now. (Lughter.) But he thought the hon, member ought to be very much obliged to him member ought to be very much obliged to him for his services on that committee, for though he heartily pleaded guilty to having taken very little share in its deliberations—if it had very fittle share in its defloerations—if it had not happened that he had sometimes shown his face in the room, there would scarcely ever have been a quorum, and the hon, member would at have had the opportunity of reporting the recommendation he now so much applauded. But the hon, member was a disappointed man on this submember would be have had the opportunity of reporting the recommendation he now so much applauded. But the hon, member was a disappointed man on this subject, and, considering his own report of the proceedings of the Committee as a chef desert of legislation, he took every opportunity of beging some reference to it into the discussion of that House. (Legislation, he took every opportunity of the hon, member, was about as absurd and impracticable a document as he had ever read; but, although this report was rejected by the Committee, by some manosurring the hon, member had managed to get his pet production printed at the Government printing office, and at the public expense, and he would further add, a more useless expenditure of the public money he had never known. (Great laughter.)

Mr. DARVALL: There could be no doubt that they were all anxious, to the best of their ability, to discharge their duty to their constituents and to that House, and therefore he could see little necessity for the hon, and learned member for Sydney being so hard on the hon, member for Northumberland, as doubtless he had done what he considered to be his duty. He could see but little objection to this enquiry being gone into, although his own impressions were certainly not in favour of the appointment of a board of this description. He believed the only effect of it would be the incurrence of much more expense, while the responsibility for the due carrying out of the public works of the colony would be to a large extent got rid of. He must say that boards of all sorts were difficult matters to deal with, and he thought if the direction of such works were left in the hands of individuals, they would be prosecuted with greater energy and success. It was true that the various departments of the Government might not have strengthe enough to meet the increased requirements of the colony, and, doubtless, some reform in this respect was necessary. And, in respect to responsible government, he would say that this reform might he carrid out us doubtless, some reform in this respect was necessary. And, in respect to responsible government, he would say that this reform might be carried out usefully. If they were to appoint an under secretary in the Colonial Secretary's office—and one in the Colonial Architect's office, or to any other department of the Government that might require it, they would be giving up talent and capacity for those responsible situations. But he did not believe these public beards, which would be invested with very slight responsibility, would be found to work well. After all, the great secret of

and this was the reason why these local boards and district councils and corporations had not done their work well. They had no direct interest in performing their dutice for the advantage of the public. Let them, for instance, look at the bridge at Maisland. That was a bridge which he believed gave astiafaction to every one, and would be a lasting benefit to the community; but it was intrusted to the care and direction of active and enterprising individual. Had the erection depended on a district council, he believed it would have been unfinished at the present day. It was the employment of active, intelligent, and skilful persons travelling about, and whose reputation and security were staked in the performance of these works, which would lead to their successful accomplishment. He had, therefore, little faith in boards,—or any other irresponsible bodies,—and still less in local bodies or municipal institutions, which had hitherto proved themselves exterly unsuited to the excumstances of the colony. Without any desire at all to incur extravagence in the expenditure of the country, he believed the true remedy for the evils complained of would be found in the judicious increase of the staff of the various departments of the Government.

Mr. MARTIN would not go so far as to say that the appointment of a board, sugge-ted in the secolution, would be the best course to adopt that there was; and it must be admitted on all hands an absolute necessity for some alteration in the system of carrying out the public works in this colony. He would beg to call the attention of the house to a few instances of the way in which some of the most important public works of the colony had been conducted for the last few years by the Government. There was, in the first place, the supply of water for the city of Sydney. The Government came forward two or three sessions ago and proposed a sum of £700 for the creased supply. It was, however, determined by a large majority of that house that the supply of water for the city of Sydney. T allowed by the Government to stand in abeyance. If this instance stood slone it would show that it was quite time that some alteration was made, as it was quite evident there was at present no office which was directly responsible for the carrying out of the public works of the colony. Again, there was another instance in the public cemetery, commenced some time ago, for which thousened some time ago, for which thousened some time ago, for which thousened some time ago, for which thouse had been thrown away. Then there was the sewerage bill, which the Government had paid heavily for to have drawn up, but the means for carrying out which had never appeared in any fisancial Badget submitted to that house. In fact it was so clumsily drawn, that it of necessity lapsed before it could by possibility be brought into operation. But it was useless to expect the present Government would expend the money of the country on the great public works required as long as they had an irresponsible Government: let the revenue of the country be large or small, they would be appropriated to the increase of existing sularies, or appointment of new officers, and there would never be any considerable supplies to be invested on those large public works which all new countries required. He believed there was no subject of more vital importance than this, or one that more urgently required the attention of the House. If this were not the case, they would on thave laid upon their table, printed at the expense of the Government, the ridiculous and absurd letter of Captain Payne on the subject of plank roady. The hon, member here quoted from the letter, explaining that it only went to assert the writer's fitness to hold any engineering appointment in Australia, without giving any hint as to the mode of the construction of these roady, or any proof that they would be suitable to the soil, climate, and timber of New South Wales. He thought whether the appointment of a Board of Works was the best course or not, the enquiry ought to be granted,

This Weather.—During the whole of Monday night it rained heavily. Towards morning the wind blew in strong guats from the eastward, and the rain partially ceased. As the day advanced, the wind got round to the south-east, and moderated, but was still pretty fresh. The evening was damp and mirely, but very little rain fell. The rains must have been very heavy in the interior, as no mails beyond Parrametta were received at the Post Office yesterday. We have had no mails from the Hunter since Saturday, and are not likely to have any before Friday night, no attemer having ventured out since the commencement of the gale.

Royal Victorica Theather.—Last evening, an audience crowded to the ceiling welcomed Mr. and Mr. Statk, whose success, throughout the States of the Union, has been frequently adverted to in the columns of this journal, Shakepere's tragedy of Hamlet was the play selected for the debit of our visitors, and most ably was it rendered, even in its minutest details. Mr. Stark is an actor of no ordinary pretensions, but we regret to say that certain obstacles were opposed to him last evening, to whick he ought not, on any account, to have been subject. In the first place, the orchestra, (with the exception of Messra. Gibbs, Gautrot, and Guerin) was attacked with a cohorus of yells and groans, in consequence of a most unjustifiable strike on the part of the band on the previous evening; and in the next place, some very disgraceful scenes which occurred in the boxes, wherein it is an unpleasant duty to state parties who ought to have known better took prominent parts. These interruptions from the front must have had their effect with the new-comers. But order having been at length restored, the tragedy was allowed to proceed; and although Mr. Stark's voice-failed him, in consequence of the prevailing influenzs, his success may be pronounced to have been complete.

EXTRACTS FROM THE NEWSPAPER PRESS
Relative to The Australian Direct Steam Navigation Company via Panama.

Navigation Company via Pract Steam Navigation Company via Panama.

Extract from the Times, of 14th January, 1853.

The Prospectus has at length been issued of a steam company to run direct from England to Australia, via Panama or any part of Central America that may ultimately be found more desirable. It is to be called "The Australian Direct Steam Navigation Company," and the nominal capital is to be £100,000, in shares of £25 each, on which £2 per share is to be paid. The Board of Directors consists of persons both of nautical and marcantile experience, connected with the trade of Central America, Australia, and the East, and it is calculated that by this route, coaling at Otsheite, or some other convenient station in the Pacific, the entire passage from England to Sydney may be regularly accomplished within $50 days.

Its convenience and safety, as well as its facilities for speed, have long been urged by aimost all parties interested in the welfare of the colonies, and every attempt to develop its capabilities will be regarded with favourable anticipations.

Extract from the Marning Past, 18th January.

Extract from the Morning Post, 18th January, 1863.

The Australian Direct Steam Navigation Company via Panama have introduced their scheme to the public, which is certainly respectably supported. The propositions summerated in the prospectus offer an opposition to the Australian Pacific Steam Navigation Company, which company we had understood was already considerably advanced in the arrangements they have long since centemplated.

already considerably advanced in the brain and have long since contemplated.

The stock of the company is to represent, in the first instance, a capital of one million sterling, but it appears that the directors have reserved to themselves the power of increasing it, reserving a fair proportion for the citizens of Australia generally.

The services of Capitain Hamond, R.N., are insured as the director of all matters.

whole distance, whether to or from England, in spout fifty days.

Though the route of Panama at present offers the most rapid means of reaching Australia in the manner proposed, it is not the intestion of this Company to confine themselves to it, should a more desirable means of transit across any other section of Central America be hereafter established.

The Directors think it unnecessary to advert to the extraordinary increase of general traffic that has sprung up, wherever proper facilities of intercourse by steam have been given, or to dwell upon those well-known statistical facts related to the growing traffic between the mother country, the Australian Colonies, and the Pacific generally, or to the important accession to be anticipated, to their projected lias, of passengers, species, and freight, coming from the west coast of South America and Collifornia.

From the Standard of the 24th Januar, 1853.
A prospectus of the Australian Direct Steam Navigation Company, it successfully established, proposes to take the Pansam route to the southern colonies, the advantage of which, in point of time, convenience, and economy, are universally acknowledged. The required easily it of 1,000,000, part of which it is proposed to raise in Australian Direct Steam Navigation Company, it is intended, shall combine every improvement which skill and aclence can suggest, and by proceeding from hence to Charges, and making use of the Pansama Ralifood for the goods and passegers and at Pansama reimbarking in another steamer, the ultimate destination of the steamer in our Australian colonies will be reached in about 50 days on the average. THE undersigned have just received a quantity of Allsopp's India Pale Ale, in very prime condition, from the celebrated bottling of Frederick Friend and Co., London.
Professor Liebig's opinion of this unrivalled beverage for all climates, appropriately described by the Sanitary Commissioner of The Lancet as "Wine of Malt," is thus adduced in a letter addressed to Mr. Henry Allsopp:

duced In a sesses

Allsopp:—

The specimens of your pale ale sent to me afforded me another opportunity of confirming its valuable qualities. I am myself an admirer of this beverage, and my own experience enables me to recommend it, in accordance with the opinion of the most eminent English physicians as a very agreeable and efficient tonic, and as a general beverage both for the invalid and the robust.

TO CAPITALISTS, MERCHANTS,
WAREHOUSEMEN, and those more immediately connected with the Wholesale and Retail Drapery business. R. M. PITE begs to call the attention of Commercial Gentlemen to the consideration of the above notice, and that it is his intention to retire from the Rotail Drapery business, which for so many years has been carried on by him, and which was first commenced under the firm of Pite and Preston.

first commenced under the firm of Pits and Preston.

In making this announcement it is only necessary to state that, in order to reduce the Stock as much as possible, the whole will immediately commence selling off till the end of the month, when the Stock, Fixtures, and Lease of Premises will be submitted to public competition by tenders, to be delivered on or before the 25th June. It is, however, necessary to observe, that the remaining Stock in the Wholesale and Retail Department will be so far arranged by the 18th that those Gentlemen who may feel disposed to go through and inspect the same can do 20, upon that and the six following days. R. M. Fite, in coming to suck determination, cannot resist this opportunity in offering the tribute of his sincers and grateful sense of past selligation for the mahesal and likheral popular disposition in his favour, from the general community of New South Wales and the adjoining colonies, the advantages of which will be ever duly and fully appreciated.

MPORTANT to various Classes of the Australian community.—The undersigned, being a holder of large Blocks of Landrunning on a line with the main streets of the city of Newcastle, announces his intention to cut them up into convenient allotments of irraliance ceet frontage and sixty-aix feet twents. Sixth being convenient allotments of twents brick-built or weather-boarded cottage of four convenient sixd rooms, with the usual apartenances, to be erected on each allotments and to remain, at a fair valuation, at the apprention of the term. Scarce another spot in these colonies affords more immediate and renumerative employment than Newcastle; beal miners, brick burners, sawyers, artizans, and labourers, to any reasonable amount; can resilies from three to ten pounds per week, according to their ability.

As medical attendance, not second in importance to any in these colonies, can be obtained upon just and equitable terms, added to the upon just and equitable terms, added to the healthy air and sea bathing which Newcastle affords, gentlemen in Sydney, and the interior, would be doing well to secure to themselves lodges or cottages there, as a most healthy retreat for their families during the summer months.

retreat for their families during the summer months.

Gold miners will find Newcastle centrally situated for their approach to the gold fields,—and as the Government have guaranteed upon the proposed capital to establish a railroad from Newcastle to Maitland, the former must with very little delay become a most important place, as merchants can ship their wool, hides, tallow, gold, bark, horns, hoofs, timber, &c., &c., direct for London, and receive direct also from thence all the supplies required for the consumption of the vast northern and northwestern interior. The enormous rents now ruling in Sydney has led the undersigned to appear in this manner before the public; and to save all misunderstandings and unnecessary communications, he has made this candid statement. When laid out, the number of silotments will be about, or a little over, two hundred.
